

Legal regulations of relationships between the Czech National Bank and commercial banks in the Czech Republic

Abstract

The aim of my thesis is to analyze the legislation in force governing the relationship between the Czech National Bank and commercial banks in the Czech Republic, focusing mainly on the issue of regulation and supervision of the banking market. The main emphasis is on defining the basic rules of operation of commercial banks.

The introductory chapter is dedicated to the fundamental stages of historical development of central banking in our territories since 1918. It is followed by a chapter on the current constitutional and statutory definition of the position, organization and activities of the Czech National Bank. The subsequent chapter deals with the legislation covering banking regulation and supervision in the Czech Republic. The final chapters then focus on the issue of the integration process of regulation and supervision of the Czech financial market and the current problem of foreign exchange interventions by the Czech National Bank.
