

This work focuses on the rise of Nazism in 1930-1933 Germany through the eyes of contemporaries, that were critical of this development, and the texts they had written at that time. Those are later compared to the texts of German historians of late 20th and early 21st century, to locate the differences in views at the situation.