

Abstract

The aim of the bachelor work is to evaluate the approach of Germany to environmental protection and take into consideration, as to which extent the principles declared in international documents; especially in the documents of the Organization of United Nations and of the European Union, are included. This is initially focussed on the waste management sphere.

The basic political documents, e.g. the policy of environmental protection, the waste management strategy, the basic laws including institutional arrangement are consecutively analyzed. The comparison with reputable international documentation dealing with sustainable development has been carried out. The example of the approach of the business sector is illustrated.

The bachelor work demonstrates the basic analysis of information sources and other findings found in the course of elaboration.
