

Abstract

The doctoral thesis (PhDr.) “Suggestion of Comprehensive Support of University Students with Special Educational Needs in the Inclusive Education Environment“ was about support of Czech university students with special educational needs. This piece of work evaluated the present condition of university support for students with special educational needs in the Czech Republic and revealed the most serious problems of university support as well as possibilities of better support of these students in the environment of inclusive education.

In practical part of this thesis, a questionnaire was used to learn about university students' awareness of the system of support at their university and to learn about their attitudes towards support service. Analyses of the questionnaires uncovered differences about university students' awareness of the system of support at their university and their attitudes towards support service between students with and without special educational needs. The outputs of this work were suggestions how to improve comprehensive support of students with special educational needs during their university studies.

This essay brought an insight into current problems of support of students with special educational needs that have been spoken about for some time now and the best solution is connected with changes in conception of tertiary education in the line of inclusive perspective.

Key words: university students, special educational needs, disability, inclusive education, support