

Abstract

The usage of online dating sides has increased in last few decades. This kind of meeting potential new partner is specific in many ways. Especially in communication, ways of selection and initiation of the relationship online. The reduction of information is another phenomenon in this kind of interaction as a result of creating impression. This contains lying and deception in self-presentation on online dating sides as well. Analysis of data suggests, that men tell lies more than women. They also fell more disclosed on the internet. In addition the users of online dating sides usually tell lies to a person of different gender. The usage of internet appeared as one of the factors that influences the usage of online dating sides for initiation of new relationship as well.

Key words:

Online dating, self-presentation online, computer mediated communication