

ABSTRACT:

The final diploma thesis of Pedagogy Specialization studying programme, Education Management studying field deals with a Self-development issue and its tools in the context of personnel management. This thesis examines the applicability possibilities of individual tools, methods and techniques used as a standard in personnel management as another possible tool of self-development.

The aim of this thesis is a self-development evaluation mean by managerial work in the context of personnel management, including the applicability of self-development in the form of personnel management tool itself and the subsequent of company development.

There are real examples of self-development possible tools across scientific disciplines In the practical part.

The work presents the introspection results leading to an active self-development and provides concrete examples of patterns handling with self-development tools.