

This bachelor thesis is divided into two parts, theoretical and practical. The work focuses on opinions of workers in palliative care on euthanasia. The theoretical part deals with the definition of palliative care, its goals and principles. Furthermore, it also introduced quality of palliative care in Czech Republic. Second chapter explains the term euthanasia and its forms. It also contains opinions of citizens of the Czech Republic on euthanasia. Third chapter is dedicated to terms such as the autonomy of human, good death, dignified death, the right to live, the right to die or previously expressed wish. In Practical part of this work there is described a survey - questionnaire. This questionnaire was given to workers in palliative care. The results of this survey are also stated. The results are processed using graphs that are described and evaluated.