

Abstract

The bachelor thesis consists of two main parts: the Czech translation of the first and second chapter and of a part of the third chapter of the French publication Les droits de l'homme racontés aux enfants (Human rights narrated for children) and the comments on this translation.

In this text of popular science-divulgateion nature, the author explains the concept of human rights to children. The comments section includes a translation analysis of the original text, describes various translation problems and offers practical solutions. The work is concluded with a list of the most frequently used translation procedures.
