

Abstract:

This bachelor's thesis is focused on the issue of arthropods as ectoparasites of man. Its aim is to create a list of selected arthropod species that may be pathogenic to humans. The overview concerns primarily species living in the Czech Republic. Furthermore the thesis will include information about their characteristics, morphology, development and symptoms of infected hosts