

Abstract:

This master thesis is based on the service non-governmental organizations (NGO) which provides mainly social services to the public. The master thesis focuses on the service and non-service activities of these organizations with an emphasis on the non-service activities. This thesis investigates how these NGOs theoretically realize the functions of NGOs through these activities and with what functions are the certain activities connected. The important element is to describe and categorize the non-service activities and explain how they were realized, why they were realized and if they are important for the head of these organizations. The master thesis also directs on financing of NGOs and on the problem, that service NGOs are very often dependent on the state financial sources. This thesis shows how the financial system of researched NGOs relates to the non-service activities of these organizations. The branch of my research are youth clubs.

Key words:

Functions of NGOs, groups of activities of NGOs, financing, youth clubs, problematic youth
