

Abstract

Federal government, states and tribal governments may invoke criminal jurisdiction over Indian country in the USA. The complexity of relationship of these entities creates legal vacuum, impression of lawlessness, which is harmful for the safety of American Indian women. Native American and Alaskan Native women are more than 2.5 times more likely to be raped than women in the USA in general.