Dissertation of F. Ziegler – Consumer protection law in the ongoing European internal energy market by the example of the Electricity Directive 2009/72/EC

This dissertation deals with a topic which has been very much neglected (not only in the Czech Republic). Nevertheless, it deserves undoubtedly admiration not only due its position at the borderline between public and private law but because of its social and economic relevance. The dissertation has a clear structure and its author uses a very appropriate methodological approach. Mr. Ziegler discussed all accessible legal and doctrinal sources. The conclusion (resolution) achieved by the author is well substantiated and persuasive.

The dissertation deserves my full recommendation.
