

The text deals with the Phenomenology of Edmund Husserl from the perspective of Emmanuel Levinas. The aim of this work is to show the basic outline of Husserl's Phenomenology, as it does Levinas in his study in the book named Discovering existence with Husserl and Heidegger. I was concentrated on how is Levinas willing to read Phenomenology. The method was thorough reading of Levinas' analysis of the Phenomenology, considering essays at the end of the book of Discovering. On the example of the speech, I tried to show, which relations Levinas consider as constitutive and in what regard may be exceeded phenomenological approach. Overall, I consider this text as a means of gaining some insight into the current philosophy and writing of Emmanuel Levinas.
