

Abstract:

The aim of this bachelor thesis is to present the academic findings of a Russian historian – emigrant Antonij Vasiljevic Florovsky who lived and worked in Prague in the second half of his life. The focus is the analysis of his writings, especially the topic of Czech-Russian relations. The first chapter introduces his life before emigrating, followed by his time in Czechoslovakia. The second chapter focuses on the writings of this eminent historian, with the introduction of his work followed by three analyses of selected pieces concerning Czech-Russian relations.

Keywords:

Russian emigration, Russian historians, history of science, A. V. Florovsky, Czech-Russian relations