Abstract

This bachelor thesis covers life and work of Věra Lišková. Critiques and studies of Věra Lišková are the main sources. It focuses on her conception of modern novel and tradition of Czech female authors. The texts are annotated and connected with interpretation of Czech literary history of Arne Novák and modern theories of novel as a genre.