The thesis will gather and analyze signs for basic colour terms used in the Czech sign language, with respect to their variants (regional, age-related etc.) and to their possible motivation. Results of the research will be compared to analogous data found in other sign languages as well as in Czech (with a special view to the etymology and connotations of the terms).