

Abstract

This Thesis concentrates on special instruments of the Bill of Exchange – aval, protest and domicile. The Paper describes their legal framework and current case law. The Thesis is divided into three parts, each of which is dedicated to one of the above mentioned institutes of the Bill of Exchange. A case from author's law practice is included in the chapter dedicated to aval. It specifically elaborates on particularities of the Bill of Exchange avalation. The chapter about protest analyses the author's survey (2013) in which a couple of Czech municipal administrations were requested to certify a protest of a Bill of Exchange.
