Evaluation

Major criteria:

The theoretical framework of offensive realism is a adequate approach for analysing East Asia actors. A careful and detailed analysis of the corresponding states in the light of the rising strength of China.

The missing hypothesis, which is itself perhaps offers...

Not all reporting countries replied to the author on their particular strategy against the growing power of China (e. g. balancing, band-wagoning, buck-passing).

Minor criteria:

Why are not directly linked to the theoretical sub- chapters with the specific facts of the analysed sub-region as a direct application?

Overall evaluation:

Despite minor objections, I consider the work as a successful and interestingly structured.

Suggested grade: Excellent
