

The work deals with methods of communication with children with hearing impairment. Its aim is to find out how parents make decisions when selecting a language code for their deaf children. It contains categorization of hearing disorders and briefly mentions the Deaf community. Presents a methods of communication with children with hearing impairment. It also describes the development of hearing and speech capability of children with hearing impairment and diagnostic methods of testing hearing. It talks about types of hearing aids including cochlear implant. Also highlights how different are the reactions of hearing and deaf parents on the birth of a child with hearing impairment. It shows that personal experience of deaf parents with education of deaf children is very valuable. The research looks for which difficulties and decision troubles parents had to solve.