

Abstract

Thesis title: Civil Liability in Medical Law

The main topic of this thesis is to analyze individual cases in czech medical law after the civil law codification. I would like to perform complete concept of civil liability in medical law, especially the liability for the damages. Different types of civil liability will be elaborate in detail, mainly through scientific literature and case law.

The thesis consists of seven chapters. In the first chapter, I describe medical law in historical context relevant for the topic and also I introduce current legislation of medical law at all hierarchical levels included international agreements. In the second chapter, I describe one of the most important concepts in medical liability law – concept called lege artis. The next chapter gives a brief introduction in the healthcare issues and is divided into several subchapters. In first three chapters there are also define the basic terms about health and disease. The fourth and fifth chapters are devoted to the actual liability for damages. The sixth chapter deals with civil protection of doctors and other medical employees. The last chapter is summary. It is evaluation of selected issues in health care.

The aim is to introduce a new law conception and present particular types of obligation to compensate. The new civil cod is based on the requirements of the modern society and provides much higher improvement of patient rights. Also my intention was to explain that the relationship between doctor and patient is finally equivalent.

This thesis is kind of theoretical thesis. It is based on the analysis of the current sources of medical law – current czech legislation. Text of this thesis is finalised to the date of November 29, 2016.

This thesis can be used as study or informative material.