

This thesis engages in the roles of people around a person with intellectual disability and his sexuality. It defines these roles and names their competences. It also follows the specifics of sexuality of people with intellectual disabilities and tries to demyth them. Theoretical findings are complemented with case studies and practical examples.