

Thesis The Utilization of eLearning at Faculty of Informatics and Management UHK deals with ICT potential especially eLearning one that could be utilised in the process of education at university level.

The work includes a case study "Survey of Attitudes of Academic Teachers and Students at the Faculty of Informatics and Management, University of Hradec Králové".

Research part of the thesis is focused on proving hypotheses referring to comparison of study results gained by students in the traditional face-to-face education and eLearning way of academic education.