

A topic of this work is care of geriatric patients and meeting their spiritual needs at the medical clinic. Regarding the fact that the spiritual but also biological, psychological and social needs relate largely to seniors' health condition, a large part of the theoretical section deals with distinctive features of geriatric patients' illness as all levels of a senior person's experience are largely interlinked.