ANNOTATION

The aim of this bachelor’s theses is to map and compare differences in performance in Rey-Osterrieth Complex Figure test between children with dyscalculia and children from normal population. The test is judged in two categories – copy and reproduction. Performance in these categories between two chosen groups of children is followed by statistical comparison to determine significant differences.