

To sum up my work I'd like to evaluate all my knowledge obtained during my studies, practice or information found in literature.

I've realised that people are the most important part of every successful organisation. That's why it's necessary to take heed of him. A man is a member of society, a social creature. He's different needs and of course there are different ways how to satisfy him. The ways of satisfaction can influence his approach to moral or the meaning of life. A man spends a great part of his life at work. That's why his job, his profession should satisfy him it should become not only the necessity but a certain kind of entertainment as well.