

This master's thesis aims to describe the potential of critical approach to the concept of image as evolved from new ways of expression introduced by digital media. Not only an image or a text, the contemporary communication messages consist of different elements and their interrelations.