

Thesis Theme, "Sensitization animal antigens in relation to domestic exposure" is theme very promising, as does the wide area of interest in clinical allergology and Immunology. There is no doubt that the severity of the allergy issue is present companies still perceived palčivěji. In connection with the increasing prevalence of the so-called lifestyle diseases that pose a current threat to our "advanced" Western civilization, we increasingly forced to think about how one affects the environment, which it shares with all the other inhabitants of our planet. On the one hand fascinating progress in the development of complex technology is offset by the continuing deterioration of environmental quality and global climate change. The issue of allergy is in this respect only crystal in the sea, but not However insignificant stone.