

Abstract:

As a topic of the bachelor thesis we have chosen Nursing process at a patient with necrotic pancreas. The patient was originally hospitalized for acute pancreatitis, however, necrotic pancreatitis developed during hospitalization. The aim of the study is to describe nursing care at a patient with necrotic pancreatitis at Vacuum Assisted Closure and to catch complexity from the point of view of the nursing care of the patient and description of particular phenomena, which have been demonstrated on a nursing model Henderson. A case study has been used as a method of research. A result of the paper was also supposed to be a finding concerning nursing care and stating that although pancreatic is often terminal disease and can develop even several years after stress and in abstinent period, the patient from the case study has successfully integrated into working process after he was cured.

Keywords: necrotic pancreas, nursing care, the nursing model Virginia Henderson, nursing process, case study