

The thesis is focused on the development (cultivation) musical locomotive speech of preschool children. It deals with music and movement as motivating factors in children with low interest in this activity. Bring your own content and moments of musical movement presents material used in the diagnostic field research. The conclusion summarizes the results of research in relation to internal and external motivation in music and physical education in kindergarten.