

Abstract

Title: Participatory budgeting as one of the possible sources of funding for sport

Objectives: Examine particular project financing opportunities for the construction of a street workout park, possibly from public funds provided in grant programs to promote and support sport.

Methods: The work used the method of document analysis, then synthesis of the data to create reports for a better orientation in grant programs and also the method of case studies to illustrate solid examples of grant applications.

Results: The result is lucid table used for selecting the right grant program in respect of specific case. The work also includes ideas and recommendations based on personal experience gained by participating in the project Moje stopa financed by participatory budget. The result is a proposal to detach a separate program for sport in the upcoming next year of this project.

Keywords: sports funding, grants, sport supporting programs, case study method