Masters Thesis: Bilateral Economic Relations between Czech Republic and Vietnam, Situation and Solutions
Author: Thanh Huong

The aim of this thesis is to make an overview of economic relations between the Czech Republic and Vietnam; to find reasons why they are improving now, to specify remaining problems, to analyze prospect of further evolution and to give some recommendations.

To fulfill the aim, the author describes the history of economic relations between the Czech Republic and Vietnam (Chapter 1). In the following four chapters, the author analyses four main sections of economic cooperation between Czech Republic and Vietnam; bilateral trade, foreign direct investments, official development assistance (ODA) and labor export. Each chapter contains recommendations - collected and synthesized from reports of relevant individuals and organizations. The author does not hesitate to give her own recommendations – in my opinion well grounded ones – in each chapter and in the conclusions of the whole thesis.

This thesis is well structured and well balanced. I have consulted with the author a lot of preceding versions of this thesis and it is really admirable how seriously she has been elaborating her thesis. I recommend this thesis for the final discussion and I suggest to evaluate it like a very good one.
