

The first part of this work sums up the topic of relationship violence. It deals with a specific character of partner abuse, its effects and its prevalence. It goes through myth and facts associated with abusive relationship and mentions some possibilities of solution.

We wanted to chart the experience with relationship violence and obtain expert suggestions to the treatment of perpetrators from professional community.

For this purpose we created a questionnaire that tracks the awareness and attitudes towards intimate violence and treatment of perpetrators.

The final task of this work is to propose a model for group therapy of violent partners based on all resources that we rifle through in previous chapters.
