

The Abstract

The name of the dissertation: The position of adjectives in Spanish and French – increasing tendency

The keywords: adjective, Spanish, French, a position of adjectives, anteposition, postposition, increasing tendency.

The dissertation named The position of adjectives in Spanish and French French – increasing tendency deals with issues of position of adjectives in French and Spanish language. The main topic of this dissertation is tendency to anteposition for these two languages. It's split to several parts which are separated by themes. At the beginning, we are focusing on adjectives in general and to its basic properties as a part of speech. After, we will get to know an adjective from semantic and syntactic aspect, which is underlying exactly for the position of adjective. In the end of the theoretical part we will also focus on increasing tendency in this area. The practical part will be about corpus and questionnaire research which is intended for native speakers.

The aim of this dissertation is confirm or disprove a hypothesis of common tendency to anteposition for French and Spanish adjectives.