

Abstract:

The author of the work concentrates on value orientation and attitude to selected spheres of life by adolescents growing up in institutional care, in comparison with adolescent growing up in their own biological family. The aim of the author's work to determine, how can be different value systems and attitude to selected spheres of life between these two groups in relation to the type of education.

The theoretical part of Bachelor thesis contains chapters about adolescence, formation of value orientation and value preferences, together with chapters about constitutional and family-type education. These chapters the author chose because of consistency and conditionality towards the formation of value orientation of surveyed adolescents.

In the practical part, author concentrates on different preference of selected values and life's spheres within surveyed groups, including summarizing of discovered informatik.

Key words: adolescente, family, constitutional care, children's home, value, value orientation