

In the theoretical part of this bachelor thesis, there is a general summary of information about alcoholism, children's psyche and their development, family, and strategies focusing on coping with the fact that their parents are people with greater problems, issues in the family and the impact of family on a child. The thesis consists of a possible precaution for children of parents- alcoholics and publication which was written mainly by the offspring of such parents for them. As the research method in practical part, the analysis of obtained questionnaire was used, quantity research in other words.