This thesis will be focused on the resocialization and social rehabilitation of people with the consequences of stroke in a combination with sports activities. The aim is to determine the influence of sports activities for social rehabilitation of the target group. The theoretical chapters will define and explain notions regarding stroke, social rehabilitation and sports activities. In the empirical charter the data based on the method of semistructured interview and observation will be analysed and interpreted.