

The subject of the thesis is implementation of the game Settlers of Catan for two to four players. Artificial intelligence for this game was also developed in this thesis. Moreover, genetic algorithms were used in the implementation of the artificial intelligence, so that a computer player was able to beat the average player of this game.