

Abstract

The title of the thesis :

Psychological-emotional characteristics of a selected handball woman team

The aim of the thesis :

The aim of this thesis is to outline the issue and to create a psychological-emotional characteristics of the selected team and her influence over the individual and collective performance.

The method :

To purchase needed informations I used the structured and semistructured interview, which I completed with the observation. I worked up the realized dates with psychological analysis.

The results :

In dependce on the used methods and purchased results I found, that the psychical aspect of the personality, particurarly the emotional komponent, very influences the performance of the players, in dependce on their individual charakteristics.