

ABSTRACT:

This diploma thesis addresses use of cloud computing and collaborative presentation tools in ICT education in schools. It also devotes to representative applications and their evaluation and identifies key questions which help to choose suitable application to education. Questionnaire survey evaluates application among students and proposes activities that are effective with use of these tools. This work tracks activity of students with collaborative tools and evaluates their engagement in education. Action research watches students and their work in order to evaluate engagement in education process.