

Abstract

The creation of landscape in the law

The diploma thesis deals with the creation of landscape in the law. The aim of this diploma thesis is to ascertain if the creation of landscape is provided by the Czech legal system and if so, in which ways. Another aim of the diploma thesis is to deal with the legislation in more detail, analyses it and suggests the possibilities of its improvement at the end of this diploma thesis. The diploma thesis is divided into three parts.

The first part of the diploma thesis deals with the definition of landscape. The definitions that are used in other scientific disciplines are included in the diploma thesis next to the legal definition of landscape.

The second part of the diploma thesis describes the international legislation of the creation of landscape. This part of the diploma thesis focuses particularly on the European Landscape Convention.

The third part of the diploma thesis deals with legislation of the creation of landscape in the Czech legal system. With regard to the scope of the diploma thesis, this part only deals with the public law legislation of the creation of landscape in the Czech Republic. It deals particularly with the instruments of the spatial planning. The diploma thesis deals also with the instruments of the water and the forest planning which are connected to the instruments of the spatial planning.

At the end of the diploma thesis, the diploma thesis evaluates the current state of the legislation on the instruments that deals with the creation of landscape in the Czech Republic and suggests the improvements of the legislation from the point of view de lege ferenda.