Abstract
This bachelor thesis compares radio formats and programme schedules of BBC Radio 1, which is a radio station operated by the British Broadcasting Corporation, and Radio Wave, one of the radio stations of Czech Radio. The first chapter of this thesis focuses on the history and current state of Radio Wave giving consideration to its programme schedule. The second chapter examines the same attributes of BBC Radio 1. The main part of the thesis is a comparative analysis of radio news and journalistic programmes and shows. It analyses the usage and form of spoken word and journalistic genres, such as interviews and news reports, but also the listening figures of these two stations. The aim of this bachelor thesis is to define the similarities and differences between Radio Wave and BBC Radio 1 or the ways of approaching a younger generation of potential listeners based on a detailed comparative analysis. The appendix includes original personal interviews with representatives of both Radio Wave and BBC Radio 1.
