| Course of defence: | The opponent introduced the main points of her review. The student explained in her reaction that the main focus of the thesis consisted in reflection of the key concept of revisionist state and that she perceived the chosen theoretical framework as mainly related to this key concept. In reaction to the reservations of the opponent concerning the length of the conclusion, the student has explained that she did not want to overinterpret her findings and that even though the conclusions are succinct they introduce all important parts and most importantly, they do answer the research question. Further comments discussed the possibilities of quantifications of the results. | |
