

Abstract

Author analyses three protracted conflicts of the 20th century (Cold War, Israeli-Arab Conflict and Indo-Pakistani Rivalry) in both qualitative and quantitative manner in order to find out an answer for the following research question: “Does a deterrence failure caused by a lack of credibility increase the likelihood of general deterrence failure in the next crisis?”