

Abstract

In my Bachelor thesis I would like to demonstrate the principles of the Renaissance urbanism and its resonance in Bohemia on an example of the city Telč compared to the city Pardubice. At the beginning of the 16th century belonged the owners of these cities – Lords of Hradec, together with the Lords of Pernštejn – to the richest and most influential families in Bohemia at the time. During the reign of Zacharias and Adalbert of Hradec and John IV. Pernštejn both towns underwent major reconstruction in the Renaissance style, which occurred after the destruction by fire in the second third of the 16th century. The focus of the thesis will be building development of the Telč square.
