My bachelor's thesis deals with sexual abuse of children. Theoretical part of the thesis contains basic information about sexual abuse in general and describes individual forms of abuse. Thesis is focused both on the victims and abusers. Thesis tries to highlight affects of abuse which a certain child could carry within for the rest of his/her life. Finally, theoretical part of thesis presents to a reader certain ways of how to prevent this pathological phenomenon from happening in a first place and also which direction to take in case the abuse actually happens.

Practical part contains both qualitative and quantitative research. The main goal could be considered showing the severity of sexual abuse by presenting true life stories. Regarding quantitative research – questionnaires should find out whether parents are properly informed about sexual abuse and if they discuss this topic with their child. A reader can also find statistic, which shows how sexual abuse is extended. Statistics are made in collaboration with "Children crisis centre".
