

The thesis is concerned with the preparation of the mentioned age group for the orienteering through the orientation games, rather than with the direct participants' confrontation with some special orienteering map. A special emphasis is laid on the building of proper concept of didactic procedures and their practical verification. The thesis describes the practical application of the particular games as well as of the orienteering itself. It is further investigated whether this education leads to better orienteering results.