Summary

This bachelor thesis deals with Medžuslovjanski language, its history, grammar, typological classification and usefulness nowadays. The thesis is divided into two parts: theoretical and practical. The theoretical part focuses on the history and grammar of medžuslovjanski language, besides that it explores the current use of the language, especially on the Internet. The practical part classifies Medžuslovjanski language in terms of typology (phonological, morphological and syntactic), devotes itself to the nature of language and analyzes whether it is a natural or an artificial language. Furthermore, the practical part includes a questionnaire survey and an experiment aimed at finding out whether the claim that Medžuslovjanski language is without a previous study 90% understandable for every Slav is true.
