

The objective of my work is to provide detailed information about children's aggressive behaviour and at the same time get teachers to know these responses and all the things that might influence them. The thesis describes pupils' aggressive behaviour at school and deals with a typology of aggression and aggressors. It also involves influences that participate in origin and aggression manifestation. Part of the work analyses personality of a teacher and his responses to meeting an aggressive pupil. My research is focused on typical and untypical manifestation of children's aggressive behaviour as well as the teachers' responses when encountering the pupils' aggression. Two methods have been used in a practical part of my work: a method of active survey and a method of questionnaire survey. My results show that teachers are aware of children's aggression, take it into account and they are able to solve problems.
