

The author carried out an ethnographic study of Czech Wikipedia in which he mapped human and non-human actors involved in the creation of an internet encyclopedia. As part of this process, he himself became one of the users and reflected how authorship, collective compiling of meanings, and supervision are constructed.