

Abstract: This bachelor thesis deals with the dialect agricultural terminology of the Kelečsko microregion. Its focal point is an alphabetically structured difference dialect dictionary, based on field research in the town of Kelč and nearby towns of Dolní Těšice a Police. Also included is a geographical and historical description of the researched area, with description of linguistic research in the area up to now, linguistic analysis of the dialect itself and treatise on the problem of dialect dictionary creation. In the following chapter is a linguistic analysis of the gathered dialectal material. The addendum consists of three examples of the dialect speech, pictures from the semi-structured interviews and an unfilled informed consent form.